I've reviewed the policy and in general it is ok. The only issue is enforcement and the flack we will all take from those we tell in a professional manner. If there are those people who refuse to report people they see when they refuse to cooperate, then they should be able to ask a friend to submit the report for them, as long as they have the correct information to share.

I think that putting this policy into effect this coming July 1 is too fast and should not be considered. In the best interest of the University, I believe that we should have a major press announcement so that everyone hears about it from a broad perspective.

Then as a stage two event, we need to put information about this into our outgoing mailings and any documents leaving this University for at least 4 months. By then almost everyone would have gotten the word.

We should have a date set after 4 months when this would have been announced for the effective date. I don't believe it is fair to our community and any guests that may come to this campus if they have not been properly informed in advance (as much as possible).

We also should have a major signage put up so anyone coming on campus (at all entrances) will see it without question. I also believe that all advertisements from this point forward should have a standard marking on them that indicates that this is a ****tobacco-free**** campus.

No one can honestly say that they were not informed. We may not be liked for our decision, but that is what it is. Thanks for letting me express my opinion.
